HENRY FORD SAYS HIS PLAN WILL END LONG CAPITAL-LABOR WAR

"Share Your Profits With the Men Who Produce the Profits; Don't Give It To Them as Presents, But Put It In Their Pay Envelope"—Every Workman Now His Partner.

BY W. H. ALBURN

Detroit, Mich, Jan. 13.—Henry Ford, the Detroit millionaire automobile maker who amazed the world by fixing $5 a day as the minimum wage for his 20,000 workingmen, adding $10,000,000 to their yearly income, has just explained to me just WHY he did it. And this mystery which has baffled astute captains of industry and learned students of economics is so simple that a child can understand it.

He wanted to give a striking object lesson of how Christianity can be applied to modern industry.

He believes that all other employers of labor can follow his example, and that most of them will, when they understand it.

He believes that his principle of profit-sharing, rightly applied, will end the long war between capital and labor.

Rhythmically balancing his slender body on toes and heels, the gray-haired, gray-eyed man of 50 explained to me his philosophy of life and work.
